

Starfish Daily Stories

Snow Day

We started off our snow day with some theme activities. The children played with ice that had dino's hiding in them, fake snow made of cornflour and oil and cotton balls.

The children explored each activity getting messy and a little wet with them.

Everyone seem to enjoy the ice with dino's hiding in them but had a little trouble picking it up and the children couldn't work out why .

Snow Day

What a wet and fun afternoon we had!!

The starfish girls all in their pink clothes jumped right in. some the children went right in crawling around the ice and some sat back on the side and just played with it.

We throw the ice up in the air, kick it around and even ate it. We had some very happy and unhappy children when it was time to leave.

Yummy Berry muffins

The children helped make so yummy berry muffins for our afternoon. They all tried the berries but didn't really like them to much. They helped to m ix everything together in the bowl. All the children enjoyed the muffins for afternoon and there wasn't any left.

Sensory snowman

We add white paint to a bag and drew a snowman on the outside of it. The children moved the paint around to cover the snowman.

This was a fun and mess free sensory and painting activity for the children.

Reflection of the day

Yummy marshmallows

The children enjoyed all the snow activities for the day, exploring all the new textures and cold things. As some of the textures are new to the children we will try other activities with them next week.
