

Starfish Daily Stories

Painting

Today we worked on making ladybugs again this time using red paint and sponges.

Red paint was placed on the sponges and given to the children to explore and see how they would use it to paint the ladybugs.

Some of the children held the sponges up and wiped their hands over the paint. Some used their fingers to wipe the paint around on the paper.

After all the red paint was on the lovely ladybugs, the children added a few black dots.

Ball pit!
 Playing with all the colours, the children climbed in and out and threw all the balls around the room. We lots of laughing and smiling as they had lots of fun!

Story time!
 "My Country" - 'A vibrant lyrical celebration of country' we listened to a aboriginal story all about our country. We also looked at all the beautiful drawing and colours in the book.

Bugs, bugs, bugs. Over the last couple of weeks we have looked, played and painted different bugs. Being able to use the bugs that are real and in the cased resin is great as you can see lots of little details close up on each bug!

Maddie enjoyed some music today making a whole lot of noise. She also played with the finger puppets in the room. She explored playing with ever toy in the room even if only for a few seconds each.

Norah was one happy little starfish today exploring the new balls that were in the room. She liked the ones that made lot of noise!

She played with the blocks and toys that stacked together. As she placed the stocking toys we named all the different colours!

Arden practiced her walking today using the walker, off she went her feet couldn't keep up with how fast she wanted to go!

She also enjoyed reading some books on different animals and hugging all the baby dolls in the room one by one.

Jonathan explored the different bugs today on the table. He spent some time doing this and making sure he looked at every bug there was. He enjoyed the ball pit for a little bit but mainly just liked playing with the balls outside of the pit. He played lots of music in the room and also did lots of building with blocks.

Reflection of the day

Today most of the children had very big sleep in the room but they all woke up very happy and wanting to explore. They like painting and being able to use their hands so a finger painting activity is on the list to do next week!
