Sticky wall sheep!

Today we explored a new farm animal– sheep for our sensory play today. I put a contact paper on the glass door and drew a sheep on that. Then I put some cotton balls in a plate and invited children to join me. I started putting the cotton balls one by one on the paper and said, “ It’s a sheep!” Arden copied me by saying, “ EEP!” and then she grabbed few cotton balls together in her hand and started putting them on the paper. Children loved thsi experience and they enjoyed tapping tehri hands on the sticky appear and felt that sticky texture.

Bonnie and Hailey enjoyed the soft touch of cotton balls and loved to hold them in their hands.

Foot painting– A beautiful pig!

What an exciting sensory experience our babies had today. Miss Megha, Miss Matisse and Miss Vivian all decided to make a pig out of the starfish footprints. Arden, Harlow and Hailey, after Miss Vivian put the paint on their feet, laughed as the cold paint tickled their feet. Madeleine and Amelia were both confused with the feeling of the paint unsure of what it was on their feet. Grace was excited to feel the cold paint on her feet, although once the paint was on her foot she was very unsure about the feeling and let Miss Matisse know that she didn't really like the paint brush tickling her foot.

Indoors and outdoors!

Indoor play helps children in widening the Areas of their interest by exploring different toys and activities whereas outdoor play helps the children in learning more about their surroundings and makes them more comfortable with the world around him.

After exploring the indoor environment, before lunch, children headed outside to get some fresh air where I set up some activities like ball-pit, obstacle course, climbing tomb and some sensory books. Ball-pit was the main attraction outdoors where children loved to sit in there and had fun with balls.

Hailey loved to grab as many balls as she could in her hands. "What you got Hailey?" I asked and she giggled while spreading the balls with her hands. Grace was very interested in pressing buttons on a musical book and loved to hear the rhymes every time she pressed a button.

Arden enjoyed sliding in the ball-pit whereas Amelia and Harlow grabbed their attention in the soft touch books and "drop the activity."

Children had great fun time while exploring their indoor and outdoor surroundings.

Learning outcomes: 1.4, 3.1, 3.2, 4.3, 5.4
