Yoga with Miss Gini

We began this morning with Miss Gini coming in for our weekly yoga lesson. We started off by stretching and saying hello to our toes. We practiced our breathing skills and we used a collapsible ball to help assist us. Our lesson finished with everyone receiving stickers for their amazing efforts!

Airplane watching A is for ... airplane!

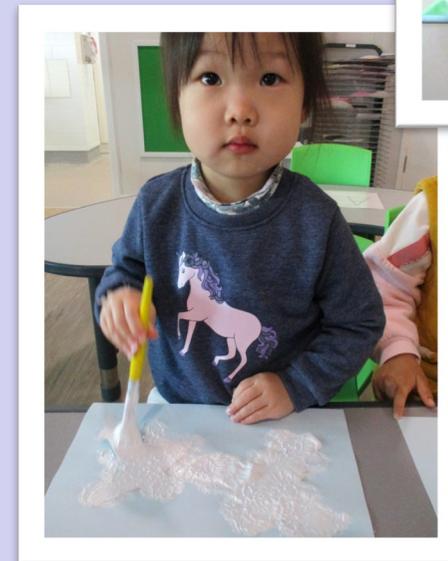

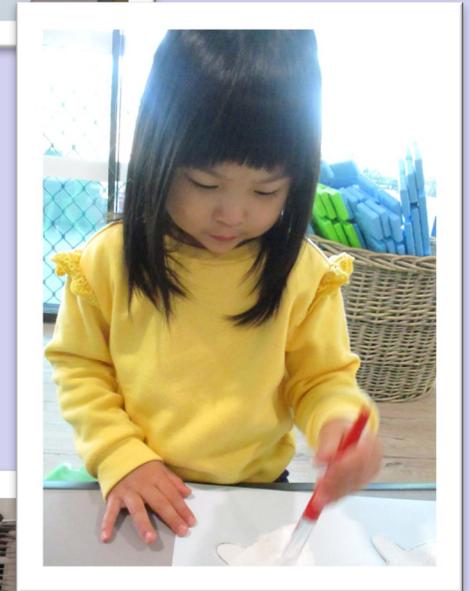

Once Miss Gini left, we had a group discussion about the letter A. We spoke about what begins with the letter A and what sounds it makes. We decided that we would go outside and have a look at the sky to see if we could see any airplanes in the sky. "I see clouds!" Penelope exclaimed. "It's too bright" Evelyn said as she turned her head away. Unfortunately we didn't get to see any airplanes this morning but we are hopeful that we can check again this afternoon.

Airplane silhouettes

Our plan today was to paint airplanes. But seeing as though we couldn't see any in the sky, we used airplane silhouettes, dabbed our paint brushes with white paint on top of them and created an outline of an airplane. While some covered their paper in white paint, others decided to just paint on top of the airplane.

Letter recognition

To further extend on the letter 'A', Miss Caitlin printed letter tracing sheets and puzzle matching games for the children to play.

We started the tracing activity by identifying the letter and then using our finger to trace the dots. When we were confident enough to trace with our finger, we tried with a pen. We learnt how to hold a pen correctly in our hands. For some this is the first time learning how to hold it correctly so it is going to take some time.

The matching activities consisted of being able to identify the letter A. We are learning which 'A' is an upper case and which 'a' is a lower case. We will continue to practice everyday this week and add in a new letter each week.

Reflection of the day

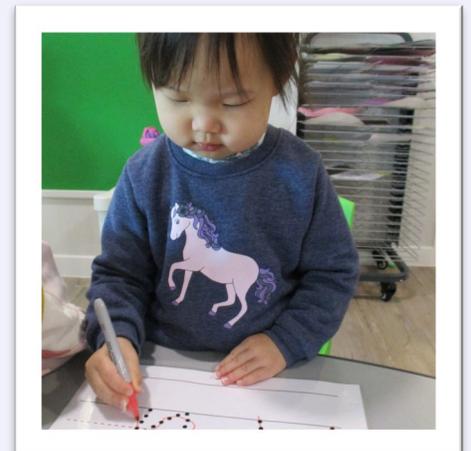

We are already halfway through the week already!

We had a fun-filled day today starting with yoga and then continuing learning about the letter A. As the week passes, we are able to identify the letter A more and more. The children are seeming to be engaged and excited in the activities provided and are becoming more confident in their knowledge.

We hope to see this continue as we explore more of the alphabet.
