Australian Animal drawing

Another lock down day here at BTP early learning with only a few of our friends being able to join us here for our regular learning. A big shout out to our friends at home letting you know we miss you and am looking forward to restrictions to ease so you can come back and join us.

Today we focused on coming together as combined class with our three younger rooms but we also had our older friends join in our combined program. The children found this exciting as they had older children to observe and learn from.

The children were invited to do some drawing using Australian animal templates. They found the conversation at the table stimulating as there was discussion with the older children learning to recognize the animals. Our little BTP babies seemed intrigued and curious as to what they were talking about.

Abigail became very interested in trying to recognize the different coloured crayons she was using and could repeat the colours when asked to identify them.

Harlow was more focused on the process and experimenting with pencil grip. She practiced learning to manipulate the crayons to make marking on the paper.

Harvey and Evan both were focused on using all the different colours and were even offering each other different colours to use.

Miss Zoe's group time

Miss Zoe created a clear comfortable open space. She invited all the children to come and join her on the mat for story time. There was a lot of excitement from the children as they all gathered on mat.

The children selected the stories they wanted Miss Zoe to read.

Miss Zoe's presentation was very engaging and energetic which captured the children's attention and interest.

Miss Zoe invited some of the children to come up and assist with her story telling.

Outside play

Unfortunately due to technical difficulties we have been unable to take photos to share with you of their outdoor experience, but they sure do have a story or two to share with you.

The children had a morning tea outside at the table this morning engaging all the children at the service for a special meal time. Developing social skills and meal time edicacy. Lots of language and conversation being shared the tables.

Harvey and Evan spent some individual time building with the mega blocks. Evan was handing Harvey blocks in which they ended up beginning to build and share the same construction project.

Harlow newly walking found it very entertaining to walk around the yard and explore the resources and the environment. She was quite intrigued with the foam obstacle course and wanted to challenge herself by trying to climb it and navigate through it.

Abigail spent time in home corner with some of the children from the stingray room. She collected food and was using pots to put them in pretending to cook them on the stove.

Analyse of learning

- Connecting with children across the service.
- Pencil grip
- Imagination and creativity.
- Cooperation and sharing.
- Enjoyment of literacy
- Attention span

Reflection of the day

The children coped very well being combined as a whole centre. They showed confidence and curiosity. They learned skills from each other.

They explore concept of colours and developed an awareness of Australian animals.
